20,000 Polish Jews Hit By Germany's 'Purge'

POLAND WARNS GERMANS WILL BE DEPORTED

Nation Plans Retaliation By Banishing Equal Number Of German Residents.

NEGOTIATIONS STALLED

Thousands Expelled by Nazis Arrive at Border; Many Refused Admission.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The London Daily Mirror, in an undated dispatch, reported today that Germany ordered the round-up of Polish Jews because "Nazi secret police say they have discovered a plot to assassinate Chancellor Hitler and his chief lieutenants."

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Germany's mass deportation order so far has hit between 15,000 and 20,000 Polish Jews throughout the reich, it was learned on high authority today.

While the expulsions have been "tentatively suspended" during negotiations over Warsaw's drastic passport laws, a new crisis arose with a Polish threat to deport an equal number of Germans.

At least one-third, or a minimum of 5,000 of the Jews thus far affected by the banishment order arrived across the Polish border in special trains, or were pushed across the frontier at Silesian points.

Wait at Border.

Another third is still waiting at the Polish border stations, where the Poles refuse to admit them, and the remainder are being transported to the frontier in slow stages.

Berlin's drastic action, it was ascertained, followed an ultimatum to Warsaw two days ago, calling for cancellation of the decree threatening Poles in Germany with loss of their nationality.

Negotiations with Warsaw apparently have covered little ground and are merely postponing the eventual mass deportation of 100,000 more persons.

Conferences Resumed.

The negotiations were resumed this morning, but it appeared evident that no final agreement was reached. However, shortly after noon, the Polish embassy issued this statement:

"The first stage of the Polish-German negotiations has concluded and no further negotiations will be taken up."

It was added that the talks nevertheless brought tentative suspension of the "extraordinary measures for the time being."

ESCAPE DEATH

Couple Have Close Call as Train Hits Car.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Witlatch, 15 Home avenue, narrowly escaped death at 1 a. m. today when their automobile was struck by a north bound Pennsylvania passenger train at the East Fifth street crossing and carried 30 feet down the tracks.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Witlatch were taken to the hospital where Witlatch was found to have a possible fracture of the ribs. Mrs. Witlatch was uninjured. The car was badly damaged.

M. Jarvis, the engineer, told police that he was only traveling at 25 miles an hour at the time of the crash. The crossing is without protection after midnight.

The condition of Miss Ladalyne Liston, Galion, and Mrs. Ella Murray, Galion, seriously hurt in accidents Thursday night and Friday, was reported "fair" at General hospital today. Three others injured in the Thursday night accident, Mr. and Mrs. Myrl Baker and Mrs. L. E. Simonis, all of Galion, were released from the hospital yesterday.

Vans' Furniture Auction Fund Goes Toward 68 Million Debt.

PWA Rejects Proposed O. S. R. Building Plans

Inspectors Decline to Recommend $230,000 Projects Here.

U. S. GRANT DENIED

$13,000,000 Program for State Sidetracked By Action.

The proposed $13,000,000 PWA program for Ohio institutions which would provide a new $200,000 hospital and a $30,000 power plant for the Mansfield reformatory, appeared headed for defeat today after divisional PWA inspectors recommended its rejection.

Anticipation of a court test of the Ohio Institutional Building authority's right to issue bonds to finance the state's share of the huge building program was seen as the possible reason for the PWA refusal to allow $6,153,531 grant for the project

Hopes U. S. Grant Later.

Dan A. Carmichael of the authority said, however, that loss of the grant would not halt the state's program and expressed hope that federal aid would be forthcoming later.

The authority, created at the last legislative session, proposes to issue $7,500,000 in bonds to finance the program. State Treasurer Clarence Knisley has refused, however, to post $1,000,000 to handle the bonds, contending that bonds in excess of the state's statutory limitation of $750,000 cannot be legally issued by the authority.

Besides the two proposed buildings at the Mansfield reformatory, the institution would be aided indirectly by the construction of $1,000,000 reformatories at Lebanon and Grafton under the proposed building program. The additional state institutions would relieve crowded conditions at the Mansfield reformatory.

While PWA authorities indicated they would turn down the huge building program, they announced approval of grants for 50 Ohio projects totaling $3,500,000.

Okay County Project.

One was for $31,500 for the first PWA road project in Richland county and another provided $33,188 for a new school building at Willard.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword said the federal grant would supplement $36,000 in county funds for resurfacing 93 miles of county roads.

Work on the project probably will not be started before next spring because weather conditions will not permit certain types of road work, he said.

'Hostile Witness'

Termed by Federal Judge John C. Knox as a "hostile witness," Mrs. Kate Mock Busch, government witness, above, testified in the Nazi spy trial in New York yesterday that she "wasn't interested in spies" when she dined with high German espionage officials. She denied that she knew a match packet sent to her from Germany contained the key to a secret spy code.

SPOOKS FROLIC AGAIN MONDAY

City's Traditional Halloween Celebration to Be Revived With Street Parade.

Monday is Halloween—a night when spooks and goblins are on the loose, but more than that it will mark the revival of Mansfield's traditional Halloween parade after an absence of several years.

The parade is being sponsored this year by the Gasoline Retail dealers of Richland county.

Hilarity will reign as Halloweeners take over the streets, later gathering at three different dance halls to continue their celebration.

The parade which will form on Park avenue west at 7 p. m. will include representatives of various businesses in the city who have entered floats, orchestras and bands.

There will be prizes for young and old, the best dressed and best floats. They will be reviewed by judges who will be stationed on South Park street.

Eugene Linham, general chairman today announced the line of march.

The parade will form on Park avenue west from Mulberry street to Bowman street at 7 p. m. and at 7:30 p. m. will move north on Mulberry to Fourth street, east on Fourth to Main, south on Main to North Park street, east on on North Park, south on Diamond and west on South Park past the judges stands.

There will be five sections under the chairmanship of Linham,

BEHEADED FOR TREASON

BERLIN—(AP)—Hugo Zappe, 34, of Dresden, was beheaded today for treason. He was convicted Aug. 12 upon testimony that he posed as a Sudeten refugee and thereby got important German secrets which he conveyed to the Czechs.

HUSKING 'KINGS'

Pickaway, Darke Counties Win Ohio Bang-Board Derby.

LONDON — (U.P.) — Lawrence Wright, 28, of Pickaway county, and Robert F. Hart, 27, of Darke county, reigned as Ohio's corn-husking kings today.

Wright, who "barely got under the line" in entering the state contest at the Orleton farms near here, shucked 16 bushels, 68 pounds, to win the championship cup and $25 from last year's state champion, Harold Oatney of Fairfield county, who was second with 16 bushels, 55 pounds.

Hart topped the standing corn husking contestants by tossing a net of 24 bushels, 6 pounds, against the bangboards.

3 Halloweeners Serve Out Fine In Jail For Blocking Highway

Three Lucas youths who took their Halloweening a bit too seriously last night were serving out fines in the county jail today on a charge of obstructing the highway, while a fourth was held in the detention home for investigation.

The trio in the county jail are George Green, 19, Russell Franks, 21, and Ralph Harris, 18, all of Lucas.

Arraigned in municipal court this morning on charge of obstructing the highway, each was fined $10 and costs. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch ordered them committed to the county jail until fine and costs were paid.

Deputy Sheriffs C. C. Gongwer and Joseph Hitler who took the youths into custody two miles east of Lucas on route 39, testified that the four had blocked the highway with two corn shock barricades.

The officers said on their first visit to the vicinity they cleared the barricades away after finding no trace of the pranksters. Later the officers returned to find the shocks on the road again and a car in a nearby field.

Shots fired into the air failed to halt the quartet who fled into a woods. Gongwer and Hetler disabled the ignition on the machine and two hours later returned to find the youths attempting to start it.

Meanwhile Hoyt Leiter, acting postmaster at Lucas, called in postal authorities to investigate the destruction of rural mail boxes along route 39 east of Lucas, believed to have been destroyed by Halloween pranksters.

Sawyer Adds to His Bricker Deal Charge

Claims Alleged Arrangement Between His Opponent ad Davey Extends Into State Highway Department.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Charles Sawyer, Democratic candidate for governor, charged today that a "deal" between John W. Bricker, his Republican foe, and Gov. Martin L. Davey extended into the highway department.

The candidate has accused Bricker of agreeing to grant Davey 30 per cent of the state patronage, in event of a Republican victory, for administration support.

Sawyer asserted in a radio address last night that Davey called district engineers to Columbus Oct. 1, took them to a football game and then to the executive mansion where he told them:

"Now boys, I am going to tell you something in secret which I don't want you even to tell your wives. I have it from a person whose identity I cannot now reveal . . . but he is high on the other (Republican) side—and if Mr. Bricker is elected our principal friends will be taken care of. Mr. Sawyer doesn't want us but the other side does."

An account of the meeting at the mansion was given him in a sworn statement by one of the engineers attending, Sawyer said. The person "high on the other side" was identified by Sawyer as Ed Schorr, state Republican chairman.

The candidate reiterated charges that members of the liquor department had been instructed to work for Bricker and read affidavits which he said were from inspectors who related how orders had been given them by district inspectors to support the Republican candidate.

THE LOCAL SCENE

WITH the next Republican rally in Mansfield scheduled for next Friday night, county Republicans today shifted their battlefront to the rural areas in a bid for the farm vote.

Woodyard, Republican candidate for congress in the 17th district, Harry Maxwell, candidate for state representative, and Atty.

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Police confiscated a three-foot snake after horrified residents phoned that a man was wearing it as a necktie.

The man with the snake said he bought it for 25 cents. Sergt. Clifford Blackburn sent the reptile to the zoo.

RICHLAND county Democrats will hear a candidate hailed as their party's ablest orator in Ohio when Secretary of State William J. Kennedy addresses a district rally at 7:30 p. m. today at Democratic headquarters on West Fourth street.

Speaking on the same program will be Stephen M. Young of Cleveland, candidate for congress-at-large.

Young also will headline the program at the first of a series of rural rallies which will be held at the high school in Bellville at

JOBS PAYING 11½ MILLIONS UP TO VOTERS

1,191 Candidates Seeking Top State, Federal Offices In Elections Over U. S.

CAMPAIGN COSTS HUGE

Spending Until Balloting On Nov. 8 to Total More Than Positions Pay.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Eleven and a half million dollars worth of top state and federal jobs will be handed out by the voters a week from Tuesday.

How much it will cost the candidates and their supporters to win or lose these jobs is largely a matter of conjecture; but if the spending runs true to past performances, it will cost at least eleven and a half million dollars.

Elect 32 Governors.

The jobs figure out like this:

Thirty-two governors are being elected. Their terms range from two to four years, the pay from $3,000 a year in South Dakota to $25,000 a year in New York. The jobs are being sought by 12 candidates. Salaries for the terms run up to a total of $646,800.

Thirty-five senators are being picked from among 107 contestants. The pay is $10,000 a year. Figuring the three short terms—to fill vacancies in unexpired terms—and the 32 full six-year terms, these 107 candidates are tussling for a share of $2,040,000 in salary.

972 Seek House Seats.

All the house seats save the three already filled by the early Maine election are to be handed out. There are 432 of these, with 972 trying to get them. The pay is $10,000 a year and they last for two years. That runs up to a total of $8,640,000.

These all total up to $11,356,800 a little under the round figure of $11,500,000. But there is almost enough free postage involved to make up the difference.

The figures on election cost are always hard to get. A senate committee set out a year ago to find out how much was spent in the 1936 election.

It wound up with a calculation that a grand total of $23,973,239,82 cents had been spent—an average of 52½ cents for every vote cast for president.

MEET IN COURT

Ruth Etting, Rival For Mate's Love's, See Judge Today.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—A dramatic meeting was scheduled to take place here today, with Ruth Etting, radio songbird, and Mrs. Alma Alderman, former wife of Miss Etting's present mate, Myrl S. Alderman, come face to face.

They were to meet in the offices of Attorney S. S. Hahn, with Alderman's love and $150,000 at stake.

Miss Etting, whose former husband, Marvin "Colonel Gimp" Snyder, allegedly shot and wounded Alderman, was to give a deposition in the alienation of affections suit brought against her by Mrs. Alderman.

Snyder, meanwhile, was still confined to the county jail, unable to raise $50,000 bail, on charges of attempted murder, kidnap and violation of the state's deadly weapon act.

Sets Air Mark

A new speed records for U. S. army aircraft is claimed by Lieut. Benjamin S. Kelsey, above, who reported upon arriving at Buffalo, N. Y., from Dayton, O., that he flew the 360 miles in one hour and one minute for an average speed of 355.3 miles per hour. The flight was made in a single-place Curtis pursuit monoplane.

FINDINGS NAME 12 AT SHELBY

WPA Orders Recovery of $157 After Sidewalk Quiz; Two City Officials Named.

SHELBY—Findings for recovery of $157.70 have been returned against 12 Shelby persons, including two city officials and one policeman, by the federal government which last August conducted an investigation into alleged irregularities on a WPA sidewalk program.

Those named in the findings, given to Mayor D. B. Young yesterday at state headquarters of WPA in Columbus were Councilman Kenneth Rothlisberger, City Street Commissioner Guy McClain, and Patrolman William Hafer, and nine others in which findings ranged from 60 cents to $30.

The findings reported by FBI agents who conducted the investigation, Mayor Young said, were for sidewalks on the properties of Rothlisberger and McClain, and a garage floor and approaches for Officer Hafer.

Mayor Young said he was ordered by the state office to make the collections for recovery to the government.

He said that possible court action faced the persons who refused to make the payments.

The sidewalk program was closed here last August and the foreman on the project dismissed when federal agents who had been working silently on their investigation uncovered the irregularities.

KING INVITED

LONDON — (CP) — The Daily Herald reported today that President Roosevelt had sent a personal invitation to King George and Queen Elizabeth to visit Washington and stay at the White House a few days this summer during their visit abroad.

COURT ORDERS BOARD TO KEEP CLASSES OPEN

Injunction Suit Brought By Board Member Hits 'Frills' In Modern Education.

ACTION 'UNNECESSARY'

Petitioner Says Closing Order 'Looked Like Movie' Forcing Vote On Levy.

(By Associated Press)

DAYTON—Common Pleas Judge Null M. Hodapp today temporarily restrained the Dayton board of education from closing city schools indefinitely.

The injunction was sought by Richard Withrow, only member of the board dissenting from the closing order which threatened to deprive 34,000 students of instructions and throw 1,300 teachers out of employment, probably until the first of the year.

Withrow contended the board's action was "unnecessary at this time." The system was ordered closed at the end of yesterday's classes because of a $61,000 deficit and lack of operating funds.

School as Usual.

The court's formal entry ordered the board to open school doors as usual Monday and to continue operating until a hearing on Withrow's request for a permanent enjoiner.

Already critical of what he termed "the frills and furbelows of modern education," Withrow asserted the action "looked too much like a movie to force the public to vote on the two-mill levy."

M. A. Spayd, chairman of a committee conducting the campaign for the proposed five-year levy designed to raise $500,000 annually and member of a group that asked Gov. Martin L. Davey yesterday to call a special session of the legislature, denied Withrow's assertion.

Governor Davey, refusing comment until after the elections on the group's request, described Dayton as "the only large city in the state that has not levied additional taxes for its schools."

Teachers Hear Protest.

The controversy was taken up in other parts of the state. At a sectional meeting of the Ohio Teachers association in Marietta yesterday, Dr. B. A. Stevens of the Ohio Education association declared that the state and the city of Dayton were equally to blame.

Dr. David Sutton, finance director of the state department of education, predicted that the legislature would not "let the schools down" and said re-enactment of liquid fuel and cigaret taxes or appropriation of sales tax funds to schools for 1939 would enable school districts to sell notes in anticipation of the state grants.

DUFFY TO ACT

Attorney General Favors Fund Transfer For Pensions.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy said today that he would introduce a resolution before the state emergency board calling for transfer of sufficient money from the state's general revenue and highway funds to pay in full October pensions.

Duffy is a member of the board, scheduled to meet Monday.

Suggestion of such a transfer came yesterday from Rep. Gus Kasch (D-Summit) as a deadlock between Gov. Martin L. Davey and the federal social security board continued. The board has refused to allow its 50 per cent share of the state pensions because of the refusal of Davey to order changes in the Ohio pension administration.

FREE ON BOND

Herner Pleads Not Guilty To Expense Account Padding.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Former State Sen. William Herner, Monroeville Democrat, was free on $500 cash bond today to await trial on an indictment charging the padding of expense accounts while he was serving as a member of the state board of control.

Appearing voluntarily before Common Pleas Judge Cecil J. Randall, Herner entered a not guilty plea. Dates for his trial and that of ex-Rep. Julian Schweller, Putnam county Democrat indicted on similar charges, have not been set.

SPEEDING TEACHER FINED

CLEVELAND—(CP)—Miss Mary Yerian, school teacher from Bellaire, today was fined $25 by Police Judge Julius Kovachy on a charge of speeding 65 miles an hour. Miss Yerian is attending the convention of the Northeastern Ohio Teachers' association here.

News-Journal Writer Ranks High In Ohio Contest Awards

Jane Williams, News-Journal staff writer, ranked among the top winners of prizes awarded by the Ohio Newspaper Women's association, convening in Cleveland this week-end, for outstanding newspaper work.

Mrs. Williams won a first, second and third prize, totaling $30, in different classifications of stories, and also was awarded two honorable mentions.

Top honors were shared by Helen Waterhouse of the Akron Beacon-Journal and Esther Hamilton of the Youngstown Vindicator, who won $55 each. Miss Waterhouse took four firsts, a second and two honorable mentions. Miss Hamilton had three firsts and an honorable mention. Josephine Robertson, of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, had a first, second and third and two honorable mentions. Her prize awards totaled $45.

All entries were judged by out-of-state newspaper men and women, who were unaware of the identity of the contestants.

Mrs. Williams' first prize was for the best news story appearing in a paper of less than 25,000 circulation. Her entry was her story on the forced resignation of John Correll, Mansfield teacher, from the primary campaign organization of Charles Sawyer.

Her second prize was for her "Not That It Matters" column.

VIRGINIA VOEGELE WED AT PARISH HOUSE

Mansfield Girl Becomes Bride of William Thomas Green In Formal Ceremony Performed By Rev. Michael Walz.

WEARING a gown of antique ivory velvet, which she designed for herself, Miss Virginia Martha Voegele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Voegele, stood before Rev. Michael J. Walz at 11:30 a. m. today when her father gave her in marriage to William Thomas Green.

The gown was made with a girdle style waistline pointed at the center front and slightly flared from the hips to the hemline. The skirt descended in a long train. A duchess lace bertha, which was on Mrs. Voegele's wedding gown, decorated the neck which was finished with net in the off-shoulder fashion. The sleeves puffed above the elbow, were tight to the wrist, and ended in tiny points over the hands.

Long Veil.

With this gown the bride wore an ivory tulle veil four yards long held to her head with a Juliet cap of tulle and velvet. She carried an arm bouquet of Easter lilies with a tiny spray falling from it, and wore a diamond wrist watch, the gift of the bridegroom.

The bride was attended by Mrs. E. C. Trainer, Philadelphia, Pa., who wore a gown of Copenhagen blue velvet made on simple lines with the waist fitted, and the skirt falling in folds to the floor. The sleeves were puffed above the elbow, and tightened to the wrist.

Miss Voegele's other attendant, Miss Mary Lou Hehman, wore a wine red gown made on plain, fitted line with square neck and long puffed sleeves. Both attendants wore hats of matching net tied with velvet and trimmed with feather tips and veils. They carried arm bouquets of Talisman roses and purple-blue delphinium.

Judge Donald Weems, brother-in-law of the bridegroom from Winchester, Va., and Harry A. Wallace, jr., Charleston, W. Va., served as best man and usher, respectively, for the ceremony which was performed at the parish house of St. Peter's Catholic church.

Breakfast at Hotel.

A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Mrs. Voegele wore a purple velvet floor-length gown with a matching hat, while Mrs. A. L. Green, Charleston, W. Va., mother of the bridegroom, was clad in wine velvet with a matching felt and velvet hat. Both mothers had orchid corsages.

Mr. and Mrs. Green left after the breakfast for a ten-day motor trip through the east. They will make their home in Columbus upon their return to Ohio. Mrs. Green wore a traveling costume of a black suit with twill satin bound lapels and pockets with twin silver fox scarfs, black and white hat and gloves, patent purse and black pumps.

The former Miss Voegele, who made her home with her parents at 541 Park avenue west, attended Mansfield Senior high school and was graduated from Ogontz School for Girls at Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Green, who attended Charleston high school and Washington and Lee university, is in the sales department of the Wyatt Coal Sales company.

THREE GUESTS PRESENT.

Three guests joined sixteen members of Circle Two, of the Park Avenue Baptist church for a one o'clock luncheon Friday at the home of Mrs W. P. Booz, North Bowman street. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Orinda Dickson. Another one o'clock luncheon is scheduled for Nov. 25 at the home of Mrs. Nick Prion, 87 Mendota street.

Cleveland Artist Is Guest Speaker At Club Meeting

Miss Mae Ames of Cleveland was introduced as guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Cosmopolitan club when sixty members and guests met in the library of the Congregational church Friday. Miss Ames illustrated her talk with a display of her own oil paintings.

In discussing her subject, "Art In Everyday Life," Miss Ames urged her audience to apply a knowledge of art in the selection of clothing, home-furnishings as well as in the appreciation of pictures. She explained the underlying principle of art as the fitness of purpose, and advised that beauty is never found in extremes. "To produce the greatest beauty we must have some repetition, variety and symmetry," she said.

Barn Dance, Hillbilly Party Given By The Glenn Vinsons

MORE than 60 guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Vinson turned "hillbilly" last night when they attended one of the most original and gayest parties of the year, the barn dance at Glenleigh, the Vinson farm on Cook road.

The Vinson barn, which was completed this week, rang with hillbilly music and the sing-song voice of the dance caller, whose "salute your lady and promenade right, with a do-C-do" had the dancers swinging through unaccustomed steps.

Alex Reed's radio hillbilly orchestra, which formerly was on the air over southern stations, provided the music. Guests came in appropriate costumes, with blue overalls and red bandannas very much the proper thing.

The barn was "dressed up" with corn stalks and baled hay. Alcoves were marked off around the big room with shocks of corn, and there were tables with baled hay for seats. The buffet table, from which supper was served was colorfully arranged with pumpkins, autumn berries and leaves. A smoking room, devoid of fire hazards, was arranged at one end of the barn.

The invitations to the party were as novel as the party itself. They were illustrated with hand sketches, and the invitation was written in verses after the meter of "Farmer In The Dell." It was designed and written by Mrs. Louis J. Ott.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I had traveled a long way into the past in the kaleidoscopic second which had followed my answer to Miss Whitlock's question, but her tactful comment upon what I had said brought me back to the present, with gratitude leavening my embarrassment.

"We haven't unlimited time, that's true," she said, and there was not the slightest hint in her manner that she had noticed my flushed face or my silence

"But we won't need much time to plan the guarding of Mary," she went on swiftly. "You don't think, do you, that whoever is plotting against her means to do her any physical harm?"

"No—o—" I said reluctantly. "That is, I am sure Philip Veritzen is too canny to do anything which by any possibility might be traced back to him. Avis Arlen, as a neighbor of mine would say, is 'something else again,' and, quoting from the same source, I 'wouldn't put anything past her'."

Miss Whitlock smiled.

"I agree with you on that point," she said. Then her voice was suddenly grim.

"But you need have no fear on that score," she said, "I have handled her type before. Nothing she can do, save perhaps setting fire to the hotel"—she laughed amusedly—"will bother me in the least. And you may depend upon me to be within reaching distance of Mary during every second of the time that you are absent from her. If I understand the situation, you are afraid that either this Arlen creature, or Mr. Veritzen himself, is plotting to discover something or to make something happen which will appear to involve Mary in something discreditable."

"That is the thing of which I am afraid," I said.

"Well! don't be afraid any longer. Both of us will be with her most of the time, and one of us all the time while the danger exists. We have night chains on all the doors, and no unknown person is going to get past the barrier—except—"

She stopped and looked intently at me.

"I forgot the waiters bringing meals," she said, "and the chambermaids. Tell me, do you think the hotel management is much involved in this? How would they dare? After all, this is a high-class hotel."

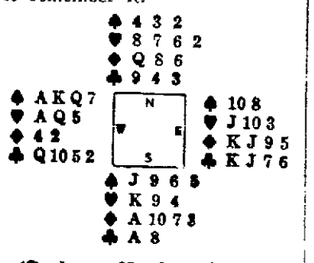
"The Authority on Authorities"

HEAR WITH YOUR MIND

"Didn't you hear North pass his partner's opening No Trump bid? If so, did you hear only with your ears? If you had listened with your mind, you would have known two things—that North was woefully weak and that I consequently had a pretty good hand at least. You should therefore have doubled, since you had an almost average han'." Next time you hear a post-mortem like that, try to remember it.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a duplicate tournament and at most tables East and West were able to reach their correct contract of 3-No Trump. At some tables, South bid a weak 1-No Trump. Some West players doubled and after 2-Diamonds by East, went to 2-No Trump, East to 3-No Trump.

A few of the better West players passed but their partners, after hearing passes by West and North, inferred that West undoubtedly held some strength if North could make no response. They therefore doubled and these players arrived at a game in No Trump.

On unfortunate pair received a bottom on the board, for the East player did not have the courage to double and allowed the South player to hold the contract for 1-No Trump. Even though East-West held South to three tricks, they sacrificed a vulnerable game.

CHAPTER 32.

JUDY TOOK down the number that the butler repeated for her. She called the operator and asked for it.

It was only a minute until a man's voice answered.

"Someone wanted Judy Rogers?"

"Yes, Miss Rogers." There was warmth in the hearty tones. "My daughter Coralee has been trying to get you. Just a moment, please."

"Miss Rogers? I just saw the paper last night and I know all about the dog! Miss Boland asked me to deliver it to that address for her, get the money, and keep still. It was the afternoon before I left . . ."

The comfortable bedroom was reeling, tipping over like an old fashioned Buster Brown drawing, going into a tail spin.

"What paper, Coralee?" Judy managed to say.

Coralee told her, naming a Broadway gossip column.

"Will you read it to me?"

"Yes, it's right here. Listening? 'What pretty debutante of a couple of seasons ago, now earning her living as a secretary, has been brought on the carpet by her royalty-minded young employer over the disappearance of an expensive canine?' "

"Have you said anything about this to anyone?" Judy asked quickly.

"No, I've been hunting for you."

"Coralee, will you hurry over to the Pennsylvania station? There's a train at 10:17. We'll just make it. We're going out there."

Then she called Ronald, and gave him the same information.

"Judy, you're foolish. Whatever you know will keep until tomorrow. I have a big day in court. Let's postpone the arena and not throw anyone to the beasts until later."

* * *

Judy hung up. Let him be nonchalant. When Abbey needed an advisor, he was present. If he knew what the bomb was that she would spill presently he would have come jumping, she felt sure.

Coralee and Judy asked for Mr. Boland and Miss Abbey.

Abbey's eyes grew so large they were frightening in their amazement as she saw Coralee.

"But how did you find each other?" she asked.

"We were —friends," Judy emphasized the word, and gave the girl's icy hand a quick pressure.

"But I told you to get someone from an employment agency—not one of your own former servants!"

"Miss Myers was never in my employe," Judy answered. The pieces of the puzzle were fitting together. Abbey had thought Coralee would disappear, never to hear of the activities in the Boland household or to be seen by anyone in the establishment. Therefore, she had been asked to sell a dog, and the girl, seeing no reason why she shouldn't obey her mistress' orders, had complied.

Mr. Boland entered. Abbey was white and her eyes were wild. Judy almost relented. But she had her own name to save! Honor was something for which you bled you died, you fought. Beyond these four walls the story need not go. Not even the count would share the secret.

Coralee did the talking. In a few simple sentences she explained what had happened.

"Well, Abbey?" Mr. Boland turned to his daughter.

"I had a reason—a good reason for my accusation. I couldn't accuse Miss Rogers openly of attempting to steal something more valuable, so I fastened it on Boris. She wanted—she knows whom she wanted."

Judy's eyes were bright with amazement. Had Abbey guessed that she loved Ronald? Hadn't she carefully concealed it?

"I don't want anything, Miss Boland. Only the clearing of my name in any way you please."

"You did try to get Phillippe, though."

The words were so unexpected that Judy laughed. "Oh, I wouldn't have him with a blue ribbon around his neck."

"What did I tell you, Abbey?" came a lazy voice. The count, in a far corner of the den, had heard everything. He stood up, came into the room. "Suppose you and your nice young lawyer finish up the plans? I find I have pressing business elsewhere. You might just notify the papers that the nuptials of the beautiful Miss Abbey Boland and Count Phillippe Alexis von Gunderfield have gone —pfft."

Abbey's voice trembled. "But I did this for you!"

He crossed the room to her, took her hands in his, and smiled into her eyes. "You didn't love me, and I don't love you. Oh, we had romance and fun and we wouldn't have bored each other too often. We would have had money enough for diversion when we did.

"We didn't pretend love. But there's a field of honor, Abbey—a shining field—and people keep its rules. They don't lie about matters to further their own ends Goodby, Abbey. You'll be happier without me. Coming back to the city, Miss Rogers?"

Abbey's bewildered whisper was louder than a shout would have been. "But you can't! The invitations, the presents——"

"Ah, my dear, just because the cake is prepared in its small silver boxes and the bridemaid's ruffles are neatly pressed, that doesn't mean we have to carry through the drama."

* * *

For the mercenary count to throw away his dowry in this manner, when the enormity of Abbey's act proved how thoroughly she was under his thumb, amazed Judy. If the count went, though, Abbey would have no reason to hold off Ronald.

When the two were married then she, Judy, could forget the whole situation and work, work work. It was the only thing that banished trouble, pushed out the confines of time and space, left you free to wing your way unhampered.

The fire in the great fireplace sputtered as the driftwood caught, and the blue-green sparks made a fan of magic flame. The lamps spread lambent shadows of light on the floor; the huge copper candlesticks and platters above the massive shelf that topped the fireplace were burnished in the fire's glow.

Judy spoke, her voice coming back from a long journey where she had gone to learn that kindness is never lost, and hurt is not healed when another wound is inflicted for balm.

"Mr. Boland, Miss Boland. I won't mention this. I'm sorry. Abbey was excited and tired. Only, will you tell that columnist that the matter was cleared and I was exonerated? Count Phillippe, please understand that a woman's emotional nature is intricate and she does things she wouldn't dream of doing, at times."

"I understand women very well, Miss Rogers. You underestimate my talents." The count bowed.

Judy saw the look of distaste on Mr. Boland's face.

* * *

Down the room, she saw, too her own reflection. She wore the brown jacket, over the red dress, and the lights brough out every bright shade in her brown head.

Into the sudden quietness in the great room, there came an eager step. Ronald had come. Come after all.

"Ah, the hero," Count Phillippe greeted him. "So it was right. the heart of the golden haired Abbey is in your pocket. I often wondered where it was."

"Count Phillippe is not marrying my daughter—by mutual consent," Mr. Boland said gravely.

* * *

Ronald was wearing his great overcoat. His hat was in his hand. He might have been in from college for a day, Judy thought. His face was so young and eager and untouched by worry. Now, at the announcement, he looked at Abbey—long and searchingly.

There seemed to be a question in that look, an answer in Abbey's response.

The count saw it, too. He crossed to Abbey, drew her to Ronald, placed her hand on top of the lawyer's before either knew what was happening, and said: "Ronald, I suggest that there be a wedding arranged for you two."

Into the quick hush Abbey spoke slowly, clearly: "Ronald, will you marry me?"

Bob Baker Leads Shelby to Seventh Straight Triumph

Keeps Slate Clean

Carroll Romps to Easy 27-6 Victory Over Kent State; Willard Injured.

By CHARLES MARTIN

A 138-pound bundle of dynamite supplied the spark last night that enabled the Whippets of Shelby high to remain in the select group of undefeated and untied Ohio high school elevens under the floodlights at Marion before a gathering of 3,000.

That bundle was slithery-hipped Robert Baker, who literally cut a Marion Harding high forward wall to shreds as he personally tallied all the touchdowns as Shelby drubbed the Presidents, 21 to 0, in a North Central Ohio conference contest.

The victory was the fourth straight conference triumph of the season for the Whippets and their sixth win of the season. It was Marion's third NCO defeat.

Shelby, victorious over Mansfield last week, ran into a determined Harding outfit last night and had several scares before a last-period spurt put the game on ice.

Coach Bill Query's juggernaut moved into the lead midway in the opening chapter on a 68-yard march for its initial score with Baker slashing over from the two. And when it looked as though the Whippets were off on another scoring spree the Presidents suddenly came to life to halt every threat.

Although Harding failed to place a cleat inside the Whippets' 30, it proved troublesome in the second and third periods. Several times the Presidents' backs broke through the Shelby line, but the secondary halted the drives before they could do much damage.

After a Shelby threat bogged down on Marion's 15 at the start of the last quarter, the club came right back and, with the aid of a slugging penalty, opened another march from the 50 that ended with Baker diving through tackle from the seven.

Hardly had the fans settled back into their seats when George George intercepted a Harding pass on the Marion 41 to set the stage for the final marker. Two first downs placed the ball on the three and Baker pierced the line for the tally.

Jim Terman's educated toe accounted for the three extra points from placement. Not a Shelby regular was removed from the tilt by Query until the last touchdown was scored two minutes before the game was over.

Shelby's ace ball toter, Harold Bliss, was a marked man, and only on a few occasions did he break loose. His longest run came in the opening stanza when he galloped 28 yards from his own 44 on the first touchdown march.

Yosick, Shelby end, was particularly outstanding. Numerous times he broke through to drop the Marion backs before they were able to get going. Shelby held the edge in first downs, 14 to 9.

PITT'S HARD TO BEAT IN BALLOT BOX, TOO

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Panthers of Pittsburgh are just as good in the ballot box as they are on the field.

Ninety of the 100 sportswriters who participated in the season's second Associated Press poll today chose Pittsburgh as the best football team in the land, nine others picked them for second place and one for third. Pitt got 989 points, only 11 from a perfect score, to top the first ten for the second straight week.

FORWARD PASSING HITS NEW HIGH IN PRO LOOP

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — Forward passing has hit a new high in the National Professional Football league, the New York Giants setting the pace with 51 per cent efficiency, statistics showed today.

Henry Looking For An Opponent Who Can Draw Money After 3,000 Witness Title Defense

By JACK CUDDY

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — (U.P.) — Light Heavyweight Champion John Henry Lewis picked up his "peanuts" today, after last night's semi-private title defense against Al Gainer, and dolefully scanned the fistic horizon for an opponent who can draw some money.

"Peanuts" is virtually all that the Arizona colored boy received for his 15-round bout with Gainer. New Haven's dusky bricklayer, before less than 3,000 persons—the smallest crowd that ever witnessed a modern crown defense in any division.

John Henry's slice of the $7,800 gross gate amounted to less than $2,500. This will do little more than pay the expenses of his retinue for the month of training that preceded the bout.

"I gotta make some money," said Lewis. 'I'll fight anybody in the light heavy or heavyweight division who can draw at the gate. No, I won't fight Tiger Jack Fox. He won't draw."

Tiger Fox, Spokane, is the New York commissioner's No. 1 challenger. Lewis' previous refusal to meet Fox caused the New York commission to vacate his title. Hence last night's bout was recognized as a championship affair only by the National Boxing association.

Lewis said he would pare down to the 175-round limit again if any worthwhile opponent could be found. His paring down to 174 for Gainer apparently took away much of his snap, timing and judgment of distance. He was missing pathetically in most of the rounds.

However, John Henry's stamina and fighting heart enabled him to come through with a strong finish in the three closing sessions and pull his title out of danger. He won the unanimous decision of Judges James Galvn from Waterbury and Bill Taylor of Hartford. The United Press gave the champion seven rounds, Gainer five, with three even. Gainer's share of the gate was 10 per cent, or about $500 net.

Coals Hosts to Sandusky; Bantams Face Akron Club

Lake City Team's Lineup To Include Bud Krueger; Game at League Park.

THE Kallmerten and Baer semi-pro club will endeavor to register its initial grid triumph of the season Sunday when it entertains the touted Simplex Radios of Sandusky, at 2:30 p. m. at League park.

The Coals face one of their toughest jobs Sunday, but Coach Gip Miller expects his players to hit their stride. One of the team's biggest weaknesses this season has been its inability to display an adequate pass defense, and Miller has been busy this week drilling it in this department.

Beaten Only Once.

The Radios, paced by Bud Krueger, former Sandusky high school and All-Ohio back, comes here sporting a record with only one blemish against it, and the K-B's will undoubtedly have to turn on the power to win.

Another drawback that has handicapped the Coals so far has been their slowness in showing any attack in the opening halves of the games.

Although the Mansfielders must keep a constant eye on Krueger, the balance of the Sandusky backfield will bear watching. Helping the fleet back will be Barney Druchman, Johnny Mazea and Bob Kaufman, also erstwhile Sandusky high players. This foursome averages 172.

In the line Sunday for the invaders will be Sturtzinger and Bennett, ends, Miller and Zeimke tackles, Dakam and Woodburn guards, and Ramm center. Miller, formerly with the Philadelphia Eagles, is the heaviest man on the squad, tipping the Toledos at 205.

Probable Lineup.

The Mansfield starting lineup will have Sturgeon and Bob Miller at the end positions, Mike Miller and J. Gorden at tackle, Bucher and Zediker at guard, LaRue at center, and Siler, Hall, Mays and Heiser in the back field.

Mt. Gilead Holds Blue Devils Without First Down.

MT. GILEAD—The Indians of Mt. Gilead high piled up an early lead here yesterday to coast to an easy 25 to 0 victory over the Danville high Blue Devils.

Danville had its running and passing attack stopped cold and it was unable to register a first down. The closest the Blue Devils moved toward Mt. Gilead territory was their 35.

English bucked over from the four for the initial score and McPeek galloped 24 yards for touchdown No. 2. And shortly after the opening of the second period, English scored from the one and Lee added the last marker on a three-yard plunge.

Lee added the only extra point on a plunge in the first quarter.

Hand Stubborn Marion Team 14-0 Setback

Crestline Scores Twice In First Half to Win.

CRESTLINE—Crestline high's Big Little Four conference gridsters handed a stubborn Marion St. Mary's high combine a 14 to 0 setback in a conference contest here last night under the arcs.

Coach Merle Hutson's machine struck twice in the opening half to grab an early lead that was never threatened. It was the winners' second conference victory and enabled the team to climb into a tie for first place with Tiffin Calvert.

Phil Ganni and Grim lugged the ball into pay dirt for the Blue and White outfit. Both backs scored on short plunges. Keltner paved the way for the opening score when he blocked a St. Mary's punt on the 20 and recovered it on the invaders' two. On the first play Grim went over.

Ganni climaxed a drive for the second by ploughing over from the three. Keltner added the extra points on drop kicks.

Marion unleashed a desperate passing attack in the second half but the attack was throttled by Crestline on its own two. It was the visitors' only serious threat.

A Farmer's Diary

On Going to Market.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I LIKE to go to market. There is to me, a peculiar fascination about the act of providing food for the family. I have little sympathy for those who treat a market basket, on market day, as though it were a poor relation, when all the time its holds the family's health — or lack of it.

Some of the best foods are the least expensive. We bought two bags of wheat and had them ground. The result was four big paper bags of whole wheat flour. Mixed half and half with white, it makes a wholesome bread, with that good bran flavor. Cooked slowly on top of our wood stove, and served with Guernsey milk and applesauce it makes a delightful, wholesome breakfast.

Every fall we parch a bushel of old corn in the oven, then have it very finely ground. The resulting cornmeal has a savory roasted odor that adds to the appetizing flavor of mush, corn bread or muffins. Fish, dipped in egg, then rolled in this meal, and fried are excellent.

We grind a bag of buckwheat, too. The blend of whole wheat, cornmeal, white flour and buckwheat which my wife concocts makes pancakes with a difference.

A favorite evening meal of ours is made from a soup bone cooked in the pressure cooker with addition of potatoes, onions and carrots which we grew here on the farm. With a can of fruit and cookies, or a salad, this makes a dinner that is both cheap and satisfying.

I sat along the street early one Saturday morning recently and watched the buyers go to market. Without exception those who stepped briskly along with baskets on their arms were neat, happy and healthful looking. Whether this appearance was cause or effect I could not tell—perhaps it was both. At any rate, I am convinced that more thoughtful attention to the family diet makes all of us better, happier animals—and so we are more able, as Thoreau so aptly said, "to live deeply and suck all the marrow out of life."

SAWYER HURLS NEW CHARGES

Asserts Bricker-Davey 'Deal' Extends Into Highway Department of State.

"The people have every right to know exactly what they are voting for when they vote for me or my opponent," Sawyer said. "If they are voting 70 per cent for Bricker and 30 per cent for Davey they should know it."

Bricker Lashes at Communist Backing.

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for governor, declared in a campaign speech here last night that the Communists of Cleveland were putting on radio programs more extensive than those of Democrats and Republicans in an attempt to defeat him and Robert A. Taft, Republican senatorial nominee.

"Because of their (Communists') support," he added, "Charles Sawyer, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, 'boasted he would get enough votes in Cleveland to put him over."

"Sawyer can carry Cleveland by the largest vote he desires but the rest of the state is going to defeat him."

Bricker appeared at a Seventh District rally with Col. Frank Knox of Chicago, 1936 vice presidential candidate, who asserted in an address that there was a "mass-mind movement" demanding a change from the New Deal.

"Nothing can be done to stop it," Knox said. "We Republicans butted our heads against such a movement in 1932. In 1938, the people have decided they want a change, and this is why we'll win."

Taft and Bulkley Exchange Sharp Blows.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Terming Sen. Robert J. Bulkley a "stooge," Robert A. Taft, Republican senatorial nominee, complimented Junior Democratic Senator Vic Donahey last night for at least "having his ears to the ground."

Taft told Republican rallies here.

"Senator Bulkley has been just a stooge for the Democratic administration. He voted for the supreme court packing bill and the governmental reorganization bill.

"Vic Donahey voted against those two bills because he has his ears to the ground and knows that the people of Ohio were opposed to those dictatorial measures. My opponent does not care what the people think or want."

Speaking at Democratic rallies in Cleveland Sen. Bulkley accused Taft today of advocating a "do nothing" policy in federal government.

Ohio's senior senator, seeking re-election, charged last night in a campaign address that his Republican opponent would return to "let alone" methods of the Hoover administration.

"Mr. Taft has asked that we return to the old methods," said Bulkley. "We tried the old methods under Mr. Hoover and we know what happened."

"Suez" at Ohio.

CONSIDERABLE license is taken with history to make good entertainment of "Suez," which the Ohio has booked for the first half of the week with a midnight matinee tonight. The characters are actual ones, while much of the romance is fictitious It concerns Ferdinand de Lesseps, who dreamed of ships on a desert and made the dream come true when he built the Suez canal. Tyrone Power is de Lesseps whose two romances were with Eugenie, wife of Louis Napoleon, and a native Egyptian girl. They are played by Loretta Young and Annabelle.

"Arkansas Traveler."

The "sage of Van Buren," who has glorified his "kin folks" and his native state on the radio, now brings them to the screen in "Arkansas Traveler," at the Madison for the first three days of the week. Bob Burns is a happy-go-lucky printer and newspaper editor who happens along just in time to restore harmony to a politics-ridden community and to help out his "folks," Fay Bainter, John Beal, Jean Parker and Dickie Moore The role is the most serious and dramatic that Burns has ever had on the screen.

"Swing That Cheer."

An attractive foursome of young players heads the cast of "Swing That Cheer," at the Majestic Sunday and Monday. Highlighted by fast football action and campus romance, the picture brings a college story with Tom Brown, Robert Wilcox, Constance Moore and Margaret Early. Since no college picture is complete without Andy Devine, the gravel-voiced comedian is in the cast. Ernest Truex, pint-sized comedian, is also in the cast. The second feature is "The Man With 100 Faces."

"White Woman."

A Carole Lombard picture, made by Paramount several years ago, but never released in Ohio because of censor trouble, is the No. 1 attraction at the Park theater for four days, starting Sunday. It has Charles Laughton, one of the greatest of all character actors, and Charles Bickford. An English-made picture holds second place on the bill, "His Double Life." It brings Lillian Gish, who hasn't played in American films for years, and Roland Young, in a romantic comedy.

New Fraud Charges Hurled In Congressional Campaign

PREDICTIONS OF NATIONAL SCANDAL MADE

Dems Charge 'Slush Fund' In Delaware; G.O.P. Lashes At Illegal Voting Lists.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Bitter charges of fraud in the national congressional campaign were hurled today as Democratic and Republican leaders redoubled efforts in their fight to control the house.

Fraudulent registration and illegal use of money formed the basis of charges made by both sides. Predictions of "national scandals" were made.

Plans Election Contest.

The Democratic congressional committee planned to file a contest in Delaware, in the event the Republicans succeed in capturing the sole congressional seat from that seat.

The outstanding charges were:

1. Democrats charged wholesale illegal registration in Delaware and raising of "slush fund."

2. Democrats raised same charge regarding Rhode Island, with emphasis upon excessive use of money.

3. Republicans claimed to have uncovered wholesale, fraudulent registrations in Vigo and Vanderburgh, populous Indiana counties.

Other charges growing out of the congressional campaign are being framed for submission to Rep. Lewis (D) of Colorado, chairman of the house campaign funds committee, it was learned.

Democrats claimed to have established thousands of illegal registrations in Wilmington, Del. They assert that, in one instance, 27 people were registered from a dilapidated, unused house.

"We know that the usual padded registration lists are as bad or worse than they ever were in Wilmington," said Capt. Victor Harding, secretary of the Democratic congressional campaign committee.

"Action will be taken regardless of the results of the election. Sufficient evidence already has been gathered to invalidate the election of any Republican.

"In Rhode Island the Republicans are dumping money in buckетfuls. We have evidence both of illegal registrations and illegal expenditures. Evidence is in shape to submit it to the congressional campaign funds committee."

10-Year-Old Wife Cookin' and Sewin' For Bridegroom, 34

PRESTONBURG, Ky. — (INS) — Ten-year-old Mrs. Rosie Columbus Tacket divided her time today between "right smart cookin' and sewin' for her new husband, Fleming Tackett, 34, and playing with raggedy dolls she'd put together from odds and ends.

The young wife outwardly was unperturbed either by her marriage or the wide interest it occasioned. Even those who knew her well were not sure whether the girl-wife was taking everything in stride or just enjoying a childish pleasure in puzzling "the writin' fellows."

Husband "Flem" also seemed unconcerned about the influx into his simple hill country of many strangers with many questions on their lips. But he was not unconcerned about Rosie. To his little wife neighbors noted that "Flem" was tender and attentive.

Rosie's mother did what talking was done, which wasn't much. When a reporter asked little Mrs. Tackett what she thought of her marriage—which took place last Monday—her mother answered for her:

"She's not sayin' much about that," commented the mother.

Wanted: a cat with a "killer" instinct.

There's a downtown business establishment that has been afflicted with quite a few mice, much to the consternation of women patrons. So it got a cat thinking that would clear up the situation. The cat found the mice all right, but instead of killing them outright, sort of played around with them, letting them get away and then catching them again. That made the situation worse instead of better. So that cat has lost its job, and there's a search on for a cat that will do a quicker job.

There's a clever display in a Main street jewelry store window in which a bridal party marches ceaselessly through an arch. Bridesmaids, flower girl, bride and everything. The only catch is that you wait expectantly for the bride to appear and when she does, dressed in white lace and veil, she has a face that "only a mother could love". The proprietor explains that her extremely funny face probably hides a heart of gold.

With three mental cases set for hearing this morning, more than at any one time in recent months, Probate Judge C. J. Anderson found an unexpected shortage of examining physicians and called 10 before he found one that wasn't busy. "It never rains but it pours," Judge Anderson commented, adding that "most of the doctors were on operation cases."

Forney of the party's state headquarters at Columbus, asserted that "Charles Sawyer (Democratic candidate for governor) couldn't carry out his promises of a state housecleaning even if he tried."

"Political obligations to Democrats already holding office in the Davey administration wouldn't permit him to clear the slate and start over," Forney said.

"John W. Bricker, the Republican candidate who has always been known for his fearless handling of state affairs, would be in a position to head a genuine housecleaning at Columbus," Forney added.

Other speakers last night were Probate Judge C. J. Anderson who spoke in behalf of the Republican judicial candidates; Woodward, Maxwell, and John C. Friday, candidate for county commissioner.

DEMPSEY HITS 'ASSASSINATION OF CHARACTER'

Informs Dies Methods Must Cease Or He'll Resign As Committee Member.

(By United Press)

LORDSBURG, N. M. — Rep. John J. Dempsey, D., N. M., threatened today to resign as a member of the house committee on un-American activities if it does not cease its "character assassinations."

Dempsey telegraphed Chairman Martin Dies, D., Tex., to protest current public proceedings which "have only for their end the assassination of characters of men who are outstanding and who both you and I know to be American citizens of the highest type.

"If this method is to be followed," his message continued, "it can only result in undoing what good the committee has accomplished and finally must result in total repudiation of these investigations. If we are to expect such a continuation, I have no other alternative than to ask the speaker of the house to accept by resignation as a member of the committee. x x x."

Joins Healey Protest.

Dempsey previously had joined with Rep. Arthur Daniel Healey, D., Mass., in protest. He had asked that it suspend its work until after the election. Dempsey is campaigning for his third term as congressman-at-large from New Mexico.

Dempsey attacked Dies' statement that "it would be cowardly to adjourn the committee's hearing until after the election," in view of the charges that the committee was being used — as the president said — by "disgruntled Republicans."

The telegram recalled that when Dempsey last attended a committee executive session that "the majority of the committee decided that, as a matter of procedure and in order to protect citizens who were being attacked by irresponsible people making harsh and detrimental statements which could not be substantiated, the committee would conduct hearings in executive session, giving to the public and the press such information as was proved true and coming within the scope of our jurisdiction.

HALF-WAY THERE

Y. M. C. A. Reports Signing Of 150 New Members.

The half-way mark in the Y. M. C. A. membership roundup was reached last night as 150 members were reported signed at a meeting of captains at the "Y."

Of the 150 members turned in, 50 are new and 100 are renewals. The goal for the drive is 300 memberships.

It was decided by the workers to extend the drive three additional days, running through next Wednesday. The next report meeting of captains will be held at 5 p. m. Tuesday, and the final dinner meeting of all workers will be held at the "Y" at 6 p. m. Wednesday.

The roundup is headed by Robert Remy, general chairman, and Norman L. Wolfe, and Rev. D. N. Roller, division leaders.

NEW FIRE TRUCK ON TWO ALARMS

But the Equipment's Still New and Shiny; It Wasn't Used.

Mansfield's new $8,400 fire truck made its first debut yesterday, responding to two alarms, but at neither time was the equipment used.

The first call at 3:15 p. m. was at the Mansfield Tent and Awning company, 198 North Diamond street, where an electric motor had become overheated and firemen had to don masks to enter the basement to cut off the power. There was no fire.

At 4:25 p. m. the new pumper made a run to the home of T. F. Jacobs, rear of 83 West Fourth street. The minor blaze in the siding of the house was extinguished by another truck. Firemen said the house caught fire from a pile of rubbish kindled by some children.

Not That It Matters

She Could Have Lived if People Had Known — Being Argument for Levy

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IT HAS always been my contention with other women that few women can look at any subject from a wholly detached, impersonal, unbiased viewpoint and without getting their emotions all tangled up in it.

Which is one reason I have said little about the proposed half mill levy for the care of tuberculosis victims who aren't able to take care of themselves. My emotions get all tangled up with my judgment, just as they did seven years ago when a Mansfield high school girl who might easily have been saved, was permitted to die because there wasn't any public fund to help her. Only at the very last when Mansfield people learned of her tragic circumstances through the newspaper, was there milk and eggs, bedding and a nurse provided for her through private donations. Many of you will remember the case, because many of you tried to make it easier for her once you knew about her.

I sat speechless and futile beside her when she whispered:

"I wish I could live. I want to live so much. And I could have if people had known about it sooner."

* * *

TUBERCULOSIS isn't increasing in Richland county, but advanced and incipient cases are constantly coming to light through the T. B. free clinics which have been made possible the last year and a half through the Christmas Health Seal funds.

Tuberculosis, like cancer, isn't to be fooled with nor ignored. No community can afford to play ostrich on this serious public health problem. It isn't an individual problem, for a few cases may affect an entire community; may affect YOU directly.

If you vote "yes" on the half mill levy, don't think that you are making a charitable gesture. You are merely voting to protect yourself and your family.

NEWS dispatches from Europe this week tell of Hitler's new demands on Europe as a part of his price for "peace in Europe"—the rights to Rumanian oil and Hungarian wheat fields.

A right sizeable demand it is too, for Rumania is one of the greatest oil producing countries in the world, and oil is invaluable in the making of war supplies, and as fuel for motors—such as bombing planes and tanks. The wheat fields of Hungary, added to those of Germany and the new Sudetenland would keep the German army supplied with bread for an indefinite period. (Germany is already 83 per cent self-sustaining so far as food is concerned.)

And so the preparations for war go on, so that when it does come, it can be a long, drawn out affair with opportunity for a few to get very rich and millions to die. And in the midst of it, people will groan and say: "Why wasn't Hitler stopped before he was so well prepared for a long siege?"

And the answer, you poor deluded dears, is that our common sense has been asphyxiated with the "Peace at Any Price" program.

* * *

NO one knows this any better than David Lloyd-George, whose twinkling eyes must have flashed this week as he came out of retirement to "have the tellin'" of his countrymen in England "We shall have forfeited honor; we shall have lost the respect of the world," he said, "and in the end there will be no peace. There will be war—and war without friends."

And a "war without friends" won't be any worse than a war with an enemy who holds three of the aces in his own hand.

JUST when I was getting so I could go to sleep o' nights, along comes this "mystery control" thing for radios, whereby you can control your radio from any room in the house without wires or connections of any kind. And what keeps me awake is this: How would the thing work in an apartment house where two radios might be setting back to back with only a thin wall between them?

Wouldn't it be awful to be listening to a symphony concert only to have it suddenly switch to a jitterbug jamboree without human hands touching the controls, just because the tenant in the other apartment touched a button? Or even vice versa.

If there IS an explanation, I'd like to know it.

LAST Sunday night Walter Winchell, Broadway and radio columnist, said that a story would break in Columbus, Ohio, within a few days that would rock the nation, or words to that effect.

It might rock the nation, but after what we've been through the last couple of years, the people of the Buckeye state couldn't be rocked by anything, Mr. Winchell.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Investigation In Order Before Accusing Doctors of Shirking Charity Cases

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Every shriek-easy who has not a previous engagement to take on about something else at the moment will now make a noisy case for government medical care out of the report from Philadelphia that a destitute woman had her baby unattended, and lost the baby, after six physicians refused to respond to an emergency call.

This report ignored, however, the well-known fact of life that such cries do not come without warning like gunshot and traffic injuries, and avoids consideration of the possibility of contributory negligence by the woman and the man involved.

The account is incomplete as to why a woman so long forewarned had failed, whether by her own fault or for other reasons, to arrange to receive the benefit of free services which undoubtedly exist not only in so large and enlightened a city as Philadelphia but almost everywhere in this country.

* * *

This incompleteness is no ground for an assumption that the woman and the husband did neglect their responsibilities, but neither is it just to suggest, as the account and some comment have suggested, that the six physicians were simply heartless and without excuse.

Moreover, if the hospital services of Philadelphia are anything like those of New York a woman need not have a baby to bring the ambulance to her door with an intern to do the right thing by her. In New York, at least, the indigents who know the facilities which a mothering city provides for their little ills have been known to call an ambulance to fetch a doctor to treat a cold, and there is a verifiable case of a conscientious and overworked young doctor who was turned out of his bed in the middle of the night to do for a lady whose only trouble was that she could not get to sleep.

The same doctor had recently been yanked out of bed—they were short-handed in the hospital, as usual, and he was sleeping fast in an who was drunk and had cut her foot on a broken glass—nothing serious. But as he cleaned and bound her wound the patient maintained a flow of robust comment, the gist of which was that he must be a rotten doctor or he would see that she was in desperate need of rest and recuperation in a good hospital.

* * *

But, while there are those so alert to the prerogatives and rights of indigence that they hesitate not to call an ambulance doctor to treat them for hangover, baldness or chronic fatigue, there are many others so shiftless, ignorant and lazy that they neglect quite respectable ills, such as childbearing until they are suddenly thrown on the doctors' hands as emergencies.

* * *

Not to find fault too readily with the press work on the story of the destitute Philadelphia woman, I suggest, nevertheless, that the account left untold facts which were no less important than those it did tell. How came the patient not to have made arrangement for attendance in an expected emergency? Was it any fault of hers or the husband's, or can it be that Philadelphia simply does not give such assistance? If free care is available is it, then, the duty of the doctors and social service workers to go about scouting for patients?

And, finally, what about the six doctors? What were their reasons, and did anyone trouble to ascertain whether they were already occupied with more forehanded patients or, perhaps, thought it was a case which the ambulance service should take in its stride?

Junior Red Cross Enlisted In Drive Against Accidents

Services of the Junior Red Cross in Richland county have been enlisted by the senior group in its annual drive against accidents on the farm and in the home, when 14,000 check lists on home hazards were distributed through the schools.

Lists are in the form of questionnaires which parents are asked to fill out. They contain the most common hazards which were responsible for the more than 39,000 deaths last year in accidents in homes and on farms.

More accidents occur in homes than any other place in the world and farming is the most dangerous of all occupations, Red Cross bulletins show, pointing out that in addition to 39,000 killed (more than by autos), there were 150,000 crippled and 5,000,000 injured. The greater part of these are classed as preventable accidents.

In addition to the questionnaires, 14,000 booklets on "Injuries In The Home and On the Farm; How They Are Caused and How They Can Be Prevented," also were distributed through the schools.

CITY'S BALANCE TOTALS $130,000

Auditor's Report to Council Shows Cash on Hand.

A report forwarded to city council today by Auditor Paul L. Kelley showed that the city of Mansfield had a cash balance on hand of $130,867.34. This is $36,000 less than the balance May 1 when the books were balanced last.

The total includes $1,925 in the general fund, $47,155 in the waterworks fund, $5,424 in the garbage fund, $14,046 in the sanitary sewer fund, and $61,955 in the special fund.

FINDS BUSINESS SHOWING SLOW, UNSTEADY GAINS

Westinghouse Chairman Says Recent Orders Reveal No Particular Trend.

Business is showing a "slow and unsteady convalescence from its illness," A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company said after a meeting of the board in New York, Associated Press dispatches reported.

"Orders received over the last two or three months," he said, "show no particular trend either up or down, and the levels of new business are about the same to date as in May and June.

"Increases or decreases in the company's earnings usually follow several months behind the trend of new business because of the unavoidable lag between receipt of the order and delivery of the finished product. The company's income consequently is still moving downward in sympathy with the falling off in orders last spring."

Vote 50-Cent Dividend.

The directors declared a dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock and a dividend of 87½ cents a share on the participating preference stock, both payable Nov. 30 to holders of record Nov. 9. The same amounts were paid Aug. 31.

Robertson announced net income of the company for the nine months ended Sept. 30 totaled $6,212,823, equal to $2.32 a share on common stock, copared with $16,726,520, or $6.26 a share for the like period of 1937.

Unfilled orders as of Sept. 30 aggregated $43,817,402 against $78,155,632 on Sept. 30, 1937.

Sales billed in the first nine months totaled $119,530,418 against $154,839,997 in 1937, a drop of 23 per cent. Orders booked were $113,170,228 compared with $191,200,758 in the first three quarters last year, down 41 per cent.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and have the tires inspected for a possible invisible and unsuspected weak spot.

It is now explained that Indian summer is so named because they give it to you for awhile and then take it back.

Higher education is now being demanded of college football players—with requirement that the quarterback be able to count to four.

Bright Outlook for Tire and Rubber Co.

FURTHER expansion of production facilities of the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company, as announced yesterday, is another of the optimistic signs of improving industrial conditions in this city.

Recent sales conferences, which drew representatives of the company from all parts of the country, brought uniform reports of continually growing acceptance of Mansfield tires by motorists in all parts of the United States.

With a present roster of around 1,500 employes, and promise of more employment to come when the plant has been enlarged, the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company plays an important part in directly contributing to the comfort and happiness of many thousands of Mansfield people, at the same time sharing in adding to community prosperity in general.

In the movement toward decentralization of the rubber industry it may appear that brightest prospects for the future lie with tire plants such as this, making a consistently dependable product but avoiding the dangers of over expansion.

The people of this city may well be glad that the Mansfield Tire & Rubber company is progressing so notably in its field. Here is an instance. it may also be noted, in which capability of management and sound thinking of employes has resulted in a fine employer-employe relationship that has aided materially in maintaining production and expanding business.

House Numbers In Mansfield.

MANSFIELD'S messed-up house numbering system is again being considered by city council, with a view to correcting some of the more glaring defects.

Most archaic of this city's holdovers from early days, Mansfield's house numbering "system" is badly in need of complete revision, rather than makeshift correcting.

While the layout of streets and avenues in Mansfield does not accord with the uniform pattern found in some cities, due to numerous narrow thoroughfares in older sections being designated as streets or avenues, it would appear that no serious difficulties stand in the way of adoption of the block system of house numbering; instead of the plan of assigning a number for every 20 feet of frontage, as is proposed.

Under the block system, as it is in vogue in many cities, each block is assigned such part of 100 numbers as is required, the number thus giving a general idea of the distance from a central point.

Mansfield divides naturally into four parts, for house numbering purposes, with Main street and Park avenue as the dividing lines.

The matter of modernizing house numbers has been delayed year after year, but if anything is finally to be done about it why not do it right?

Most Dangerous Driving Season.

WITH deaths approximately 40,000 a year from automobile accidents, and minor or major injuries extending to several hundred thousand persons each year, constant efforts to increase highway safety seem fully justified.

While education and law enforcement are stressed as important factors in reducing highway dangers, it must also be realized that individual safety is largely dependent on the condition of the car being driven.

Fall and winter bring the most dangerous driving months of the year, with rains followed by ice or snow on streets and highways.

A wise precaution at this season is for motorists to put their cars in first-class condition, with careful attention to brakes, tires, lights and steering.

Tires, for instance, may have the outward appearance of being entirely safe and little worn, yet may have an unsuspected weakness that can cause a disastrous blowout. Removal of tires and thorough inspection by an expert is regarded as good practice by many careful motorists, some of whom have this done approximately every 5,000 miles.

Pennsylvania's experience in reducing traffic accidents by enforcing a speed limit of 50 miles an hour on highways anywhere in the state, has been such as to commend this idea to other states, with suitable speed limits provided for residential and business sections of cities and towns.

Ban Beer Selling on Sundays.

MANSFIELD city council is being asked to pass an ordinance making it illegal to sell 3.2 beer on Sundays.

Similar action has been taken by councils in other Ohio cities and the legality of such legislation has been upheld by the courts.

The only thing that has seemed to condone the sale of beer on Sunday has been the fallacious pronouncement that 3.2 beer is non-intoxicating and therefore classes as a soft drink.

Possibly worst of the evils associated with the Sunday sale of beer, however, is the opportunity thus afforded unscrupulous permit holders to use this as a cloak for trafficking in higher powered beer and bootleg liquor.

While this piece of legislation is being asked for by the Richland County Permit Holders association it is a regulatory measure that deserves public support, with a view to its earliest possible adoption by council and strict enforcement by the police department.

Of current styles in what women call their hats, there is probably most to be said for the lamp shade type, although the frying pans, church steeples and pill boxes have their charms.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The five hour surge of "Hamlet" which asks the customers to be in their seats at 6:30 p. m. and remain until 11 has a 30-minute intermission around 8:30 so that folk can rush out and grab off a snack. However, with so many to be cared for in the nearby cafes you are apt to miss your pie or the first scene of the first post-dinner act, depending on which direction your sympathies lie. The waiters just can't take that many orders.

Therefore this hungry philosopher suggests: Have your dinner before six thirty and at intermission merely refresh yourself with a soda or a cup of coffee. Then there's no hurry, no worry, no impatient delay, no gulping food, no snarling at harassed waitresses, no sudden and violent cases of indigestion, no anything but a pleasant interlude and a breath of fresh air.

Incidentally, this 6:30 curtain call with a dinner intermission isn't exactly a novelty on Broadway. "Strange Interlude" began at 4:30 in the afternoon, with an hour's intermission for dinner and lasted through 11 complete acts. Remember?

THERE is a heart-tug in the sight of that blind musician who strolls past the theaters at night, playing his accordion. His name is Phil Goldfarb, and for awhile last season he enjoyed a brief hour of fame. Various night-club operators gave him spots in their shows, but the opulent days, for him, are gone, and he is back at his old trade of serenading the passers-by.

The late George Gershwin was a schoolmate of his back in adolescent days on the East Side, and Goldfarb it was who introduced Gershwin to the teacher who gave him his first music lesson. Gershwin never forgot and always contributed generously while he lived. Others who know and have a fondness for the accordionist include Irving Berlin, Bill Robinson, Cab Calloway, Walter Donaldson, Ted Friend, and Zorina. All contribute half-dollars to the little tin cup Goldfarb carries.

VISITING Californians find New York little different from Hollywood these crisp October days, with so many film satellites in town. Roaming midtown you are apt to encounter Miriam Hopkins, Bing Crosby, Douglas Fairbanks, pere, Frank Capra, Robert Montgomery, Douglass Montgomery, Basil Rathbone, Glenda Farrell, Sam Goldwyn, Groucho and Harpo Marx, Pat O'Brien, George Raft, and George Jessel.

Crosby and his wife, the former Dixie Lee, have just returned from Bermuda; Rathbone is conducting Shakespearean classes at Columbia university; blond Miriam Hopkins is looking for a suitable play with which to make a Broadway comeback; Bob Montgomery is en route to his upstate farm; Groucho and Harpo are just kibitzing around; Raft is vacationing, and so is Pat O'Brien. Oh, yes, Garbo is here, or was. Outside of a surprise visit to the Rainbow room, which so excited everybody that the headwaiter is still wide-eyed, nobody knows what Garbo did, except one person. This is Bob Reud, and he ain't telling. Stokowski or no Stokowski, Reud is Garbo's only intimate in New York. It's been that way ever since Maurice Stiller brought her over here a decade ago.

THAT GIRL AGAIN

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C HILL

THE National Institute for Straight Thinking brings to New York from Muncie, Ind., the "typical American family," the Glen Craigs—father, mother and two children. Muncie, it will be remembered, was the "Middletown in Transition," of the famous study by Dr. Robert S. Lynd and Mrs. Lynd. In their economic status, in their manner of life and in their beliefs and attitudes the Craig family has been selected as typical of multitudes of American families who have found the "middle way," which leads those who follow it patiently to peace, solvency and contentment.

In the wake of the Craigs came their credo of 28 articles of faith. It emphasizes the homely and simple virtues of thrift, honesty and goodwill; it asserts pride in "being an average man"; it rates the rich as "more intelligent and industrious than the poor"; says "captains of industry are social benefactors," and proclaims that "American business will always lead the world." It plays down brains and plays-up character.

The National Institute for Straight Thinking apparently offers the Craig family as a laboratory demonstration of what it would like the nation to think and believe. It announces that "it acts as a testing and proving ground for the practical application of straight thinking, and is in the process of developing teaching materials which can be used as a basis for required courses of study in our schools and colleges."

* * *

AGREEING with much of the above credo, I found that it left me in a state of confusion in which I was urgently in need of further ministrations by the National Institute for Straight Thinking. For instance, there's Article 10 of the credo, in which the Craigs believe "in being, when in doubt, like other people." But what other people? In times of stress and divided opinion you can at best agree with only one of the "seventy jarring sects" who harass you from all sides. I have always assumed that the simple tenets of sound morality told us to rely on our conscience and our intelligence when we were beset with doubts.

A spirited youngster of this age might find the other young people around him addicted to cigarette-smoking, gin, the jeepers and the shag, hoofing and spoofing, petting, loose talk, haltered bathing suits, snitching the family car, profane swearing, irreverence for their elders and sabbath-breaking. At any rate, all this, and more frequently, is assessed against youth of our day. And any "typical" youngster of today may find himself just a wet smack and a total outsider unless he strings along with the above "other people."

Would the average family credo, which, presumably, the institute would put in the public schools, enjoin conformity in this instance?

Which is the better morality, to keep out of trouble by being complacently like "others," or to have standards of taste and behavior of your own without regard to what others think of you? Those "others" voted in the present national administration by a tremendous majority. Should not those in dissent have the moral right to be vigorously in opposition, even if they were not "average" in this?

* * *

THE Craigs earn $125 a month. "They use gas for cooking," says the institute. "Their house has electric lights, hot and cold running water, a bathtub, an ice refrigerator, an old-model car, and a radio."

Through all the centuries, less than 1,000 men have made actual basic contributions to the great boon of modern scientific technology which enables the Craigs to enjoy so much on so low an income. These scientists were not "average" men. They were stubborn non-conformists, elaborately indifferent to the views of "others," many of them suffering persecution for their beliefs, Galileo among them.

The credo of the Craigs extols, laudably, I believe, our form of government and our established institutions. It was evolved by non-average men who risked their lives and fortunes by their relief. There was nothing average about Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, and Adams and Tom Paine. And there isn't an intelligent parent among us who looks for the first time into the cradle of his newborn child without a fervent hope that it will be less average that he is—that he will have a gift, that he will be creative, that he will be strong and successful, that he will be, in the fullest sense, an individual.

The Oxford Group has an effective and centainly commendable slogan of "moral rearmament." Why not add to this "intellectual rearmament"? Why not a calm and penetrating reexamination of all our tenets of democracy, with a view to a clarifying and renovating of our national faith? The institute's "straight thinking" kick-off is all to the good. But if somebody else is to tell us what to think it's all waste motion and worse—a counsel of supine conformity, at war with everything this country ever stood for or fought for.

Listen, World!

Where Hurry and Worry Cease.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

EACH YEAR, before the snow falls, we come back to the mountain ranch to put things in order. We work hard—pruning, digging, burning brush. Once again we unroll the old red rug that is faded and ragged but still warm. I air the thick wool blankets—patch the torn places. Get out woolen socks.

The men stack piles of fuel beside the cabin door—oak logs, pine splinters, knobbed with gum, gnarled knots of tough, red manzanpia root, baskets of pine cones. We gather the pumpkins—big, golden fellows — and the greene bronze Hubbard squash.

It is a good time. Yet all the while something seems wrong. Something seems missing. We catch ourselves waiting—watching—feeling some strange lack.

It is so quiet. The quietness is more than a mere lack of sound. There is a deeper stilling in it—as though something far down in the very heart of the earth were slowing — some secret, central pulse from which all living comes. All Summer, unconsciously, one felt that steady throb beneath the shining swish and sway. Now it grows fainter—slackens—almost seems to stop.

A pale light settles over everything—a silvery light that somehow seems a part of the wide silence. It spreads like a wet web, across the dark and resting earth—across the great rocks with their pelts of moss. It clings and glimmers on the massed dark trees.

The poplars burn like candles in that pale, still light. The birds drift through it on soft, noiseless wings. A leaf breaks loose—floats slowly to the ground. As quietly, we humans move about our work—good work—yet what is missing.

Why do we feel so lonely, almost terrified? Why are these days so different from all other days? Like days lived in some lost, forgotten world?

Gradually we know. We are missing the city's closeness and confusion. We do not like the city. We say that we are glad to be away from it—and we mean it. Yet we miss it—why?

We miss it because it gave us a false sense of power and purpose. We did not have to be individuals in the city. We did not have to depend on ourselves. We were part of the crowd. We went with and leaned on the crowd. We shared the crowd's feeling of power and purpose. Unconsciously, we let the crowd live for us... think for us...

But now, here in this quiet place....this immense, simple, honest place...we have to live by ourselves, think for ourselves, be ourselves. We have to make our own power and purpose and it is too much for us.

It is too much for us. We feel shown up, small, weak, unimportant. We wish we could run away. But we cannot run away. And, presently, something else begins to happen...

We forget ourselves and our little itchings and rebellions. Presently the noise and the fret and the restlessness go out of us. Slowly we grow still inside. Then, slowly, things come back to us. Things we had forgotten. Gentle things — powerful things — and beauty.

We stop hurrying and worrying. We remember how much we loved each other. How good it is to work together. How good it is to have a warm, red rug and woolen socks and piles of fuel and heartening, healthy food. We are happy and grateful.

We sit in the cabin working while the rain thunders outside. We sit in the quiet room sewing, mending harness, oiling boots while the children play on the floor — and we are happy and grateful.

And I remember a verse I learned long ago, but forget in the city noise.

"Be still...and know that I am God!"

Is this God...this gentle, firelit room—this friendliness I feel for those who work with me and the little child...this soft, still thankfulness that fills my heart? Is this God? Why—I suppose it is!

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

THE busiest man in Washington this week was a tall, thin, sharp-eyed engineer named Elmer Frank Andrews. He first got on Uncle Sam's payroll as a World war aviation instructor. Now, at 47, he's Uncle Sam's payroll policeman—the man in charge of the New Deal's wage-hour law.

It went into effect at 12:01 a. m. last Monday, putting a ceiling of 44 hours over the work week in interstate commerce and a floor of 25 cents an hour under wages.

The law doesn't apply to workers in some seasonal industries and certain agricultural occupations, nor to professional men, executives, administrators, learners, handicapped persons and workers in companies regulated by the Interstate Commerce commission.

It doesn't apply to government workers, either, and Administrator Andrews and his staff—the wage-hour division of the department of labor—have been sweating 60, 70, 80 hours a week lately, at no overtime pay, trying to advise business men how the somewhat vague provisions of the law affect them.

'If In Doubt: Comply.'

Andrews figured 11,000,000 workers came under the law, and estimated the immediate result was more pay for 750,000 and shorter hours for 1,500,000.

Another result, a spokesman for the pecan shelling industry, reported, was lay-offs for 50,000 workers when all its plants in the south were closed because they felt they couldn't afford to comply with the law. Some lumber mills and tobacco stemming factories also shut down.

Andrews said he thought, however, that estimates of 80,000 men thrown out of work by shutdowns were "quite a little exaggerated." And President Roosevelt, calling on industry to co-operate, predicted that industrial dislocations caused by the law gradually would disappear.

Many details of the law's application remained in dispute, pending court or congressional clarification, but Andrews advised employers: "Any doubt about whether the law applies to a particular employe should be resolved in favor of the worker."

Business: Better.

If industrialists lost sleep over the new wage-hour law, their worries didn't show up on the business barometers nor in many of their public statements.

The stock market pushed up to the highest level in more than a year. Automobile production reached a new high level for 1938, following announcements of increased employment and pay-cut restorations by the major producers. The money market showed an improved appetite for new security issues. Meat packers reported business at a "relatively high level." And Henry Ford said: "Distinctly better times are on the wa "

Railroads continued pessimistic, reporting only 7,459 new freight cars on order on Oct. 1, compared with 24,345 a year ago and 19,337 on Oct. 1, 1936. But truckers said that in September, for the first time this year, they had carried more freight than in the same month last year.

The latest WPA figures, too, showed federal work-relief rolls at an all-time high.

Survivors.

Brigham Young, Mormon hero, had 19 wives and 56 children, and died in 1877 at the age of 76. Congress outlawed polygamy in 1882, and the Mormon church ruled out plural marriages in 1890. The last of Brigham Young's 25 sons died last week-end, but four of his 31 daughters still live around Salt Lake City.

At Home

Roosevelt or Un-Americanism

The Dies congressional committee on un-American activities dug into Michigan's 1937 labor trouble, last week, in search of Communist influence in the auto sit-down strikes. And a former Republican city manager of Flint, Mich., testified that Gov. Frank Murphy was guilty of "treasonable action in not giving us help when we should have had it."

Gov. Murphy is running for reelection this year as a Democrat, against ex-Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, and the election is less than two weeks away. So President Roosevelt came to Gov. Murphy's defense, this week, with a vigorous dressing-down of the Dies committee for permitting "itself to be used in a flagrantly unfair and Un-American attempt to influence an election."

"Most fair-minded Americans hope that the committee will abandon the practice of merely providing a forum to those who for political purposes, or otherwise, seek headlines which they could not otherwise obtain," the president said.

"Under my conception of public duty," Rep. Dies replied, "it would have been wrong to shield Gov. Murphy simply because he was a Democrat and a strong friend of the president."

The committee then received testimony from two California American Legionnaires linking California Democratic candidates with Reds. Earlier they had called Harry Bridges, west coast CIO leader, a Communist and blamed him for the San Francisco general strike of 1934. They criticized the department of labor for suspending deportation proceedings against Bridges, an Australian, and said the reason for the suspension might possibly be that Secretary Perkins's "ideals are the same as Bridges's."

America Protests.

Japanese control of China's main trade arteries threatens to close China's "open door" to other powers, and the U. S. revealed this week—on Navy day—that three weeks earlier it had sent Japan a strong, 3,000-word note protesting against "unwarranted interference" with American rights. This announcement followed a restatement of America's defense policy by President Roosevelt in a speech warning that the U. S. must be strong enough to keep any aggressor out of the western hemisphere.

Abroad

Nazis vs. Catholics.

Austria's 6,760,000 people were 90 per cent Catholics when Germany absorbed their country last spring, and the Nazis were glad to receive statements from many Catholic clergymen approving the annexation. Lately, however, Nazi-Catholic friction has increased in Austria:

Oct. 7—Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, preached a stirring sermon to a group of young Catholics, and they left the cathedral chanting praises to his name.

Oct. 8—Viennese Nazis stoned Cardinal Innitzer's palace, and he was cut by flying glass.

Oct. 18—Joseph Buerckel, Nazi commissioner for Austria, assailed Austrian Catholic clergymen, particularly Cardinal Innitzer, for "attacks against the National Socialist party and Adolf Hitler."

Oct. 20 — Pope Pius expresed deep grief over church persecutions which had "mounted as far as the sacred purple of a high pastor."

Then Cardinal Innitzer, in a letter read last Sunday from all Catholic pulpits in Vienna, denied using "inciting terms" in his Oct. 7 sermon and added: "I hold the opinion a Catholic must conscientiously fulfill his duty toward the state, but the bishop must also at all times carry out his sworn duty of representing the reich of God and the church."

Both Nazis and Catholics saw that as a peace overture which might be the basis for resuming church-state negotiations.

Russian Rumors.

Alexander A. Troyanovsky has been Russia's ambassador to Washington ever since the U. S. recognized the Soviet government five years ago. He went to Moscow for a visit last June and was expected back this month. But now the Soviet embassy says he has asked to be relieved of his post for family reasons. Result: Rumore that he (1) has been purged, (2) will replace Maxim Litvinoff as commissar of foreign affairs.

Science

Your Health.

Never have Americans been so healthy as in the last six months. Unless something unforeseen (an epidemic, perhaps) occurs, the 1938 death rate will be the lowest on record. Surgeon General Parran reported this week at the American Public Health Association's meeting in Kansas City.

Prof. H. C. Sherman of Columbia University, meanwhile, was telling the National Academy of Science at Chapel Hill, N. C., that the length of a man's life depends in part on the amount of calcium his forefathers ate.

Laboratory Reports.

The Public Health Service reports "promising" results from a new, sugar-like pneumonia vaccine tested on 30,000 CCC volunteers.

The Department of Interior reports that radio static, hitherto considered a surplus commodity, may be used to trace the origin and path of hurricanes.
